ERIE SWITCHMAN KILLED

FOUR CHILDREN DIE IN FLAMES IN OHIO TOWN

Four Others, Members of Family of 14, Seriously Hurt at Ottway

SMOKE AWAKENS FATHER

Forced To Stand by and Hear Screams of Youngsters Unable to Escape

PORTSMOUTH, Jan. 24—Four children were burned to death and four others, all members of the same family, were seriously injured, when flames destroyed their home at Ottway, [illegible] west of here, early today.

The fire, which is believed to have been caused by a defective flue, destroyed the home.

The dead:
Richmond Perry, 16.
Elsie, a sister, 10.
Vernon, a brother, 8.
Bessie, another sister, 6.

The children were sleeping on the second floor, when they were awakened by their father, Lawrence Perry, who had discovered the fire when he was aroused by the thick smoke. There were 12 children in the family, and the parents were unable to save them all.

Arthur, 15, sustained a broken ankle when he jumped from a second-story window, and his brother, Melvin, 2, was probably fatally injured when he landed on his head after having jumped from a window.

Two small girls, Martha, 7, and Melissa, 13, were seriously burned about the face and body, when they ran down a blazing stairway and out of the burning building.

Mrs. Perry escaped, without serious injury, with her 10-month-old baby girl.

The surviving members of the family were forced to helplessly stand and watch the burning of their home, while they faintly heard the screams of the four children, who were unable to escape.

The other four children, Russell, 20; Ralph, 18; Oliver, 3, and Vernon, 10 months old, were unhurt.

The family was housed in the home of neighbors. They previously had suffered considerably from the zero weather.

The intense heat from the smouldering ruins delayed the removal of the dead bodies.

Father and Young Son Die as Flames Sweep Residence

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 24—George Rousaw, 52, and his 12-year-old son, Bobbie, lost their lives in a fire which swept their home in Gaines early today.

Another son, James, 8, was rescued by his 13-year-old sister, Marjorie. She dragged her brother through a window with his clothes ablaze and rolled him in the snow. He is in a serious condition in St. Mary's hospital. Rousaw and Bobbie died in their beds.

Origin of the blaze has not been determined.

MODERN BUILDINGS REPLACE OLD

1929 Contributes Its Share to Steady Development of Marion's "Main Stem" as Busy and Modern Business Thoroughfare

The building program which has done much to change the complexion of West Center st., in recent years made a notable contribution to the street's improvement in 1929.

Of the five projects undertaken last year, three were of major importance. They were the J. C. Penney Co. store building, the Kline Co. store building and the new Haberman Chevrolet Co. garage building. In addition to these projects J. W. Thew constructed four store rooms immediately east of the Montgomery Ward store building and the Busby block was remodeled before being occupied last July by the W. T. Grant Co.

Nine in 10 Years

The West Center st. expansion program has added nine new buildings to that section of the city in the last 10 years. The westward movement began with the construction of the Hotel Harding building. Then after several years came the Palace theater, the C., D. & M. passenger and freight station, the Curtis building immediately east of the station, and the Montgomery Ward & Co. building immediately east of the hotel building. Although the cost of the buildings constructed last year was slightly below the mark of some other years, 1929 added its share to the improvement of West Center st.

Landmarks Vanish

In two cases landmarks, once pleasing to the eye, but which had fallen behind the times were removed to make way for the new and modern buildings. The old Weeks residence property was removed to make room for the Haberman building. The Kline store building, erected by R. T. Lewis, occupies the former site of the old Denman residence. The one-story office building of Drs. Herman and A. Rim was torn down to make room for the Penney store. The Thew store rooms were erected on part of the land formerly occupied by the old Fish-Honefanger residence.

Within a few weeks another occupant will move into the Lewis building. A room on the west side of the building is now being fitted out to meet the needs of the City Loan Co.

The Lewis, the Penney and Haberman buildings are considered models in their class. Many of the most modern features to be found in any building in the city are embodied in the three new structures.

Attractive Front

The front of the Kline store in the Lewis building is said to embody the latest ideas in show window display. The new Haberman building gives the company one of the largest and most modern garage plants in the city.

Whether 1930 will see still further additions to West Center st. remains to be seen. Two projects under consideration, last year may develop in 1930.

MARION GIRL'S HUSBAND SLAIN

Former Pauline Eastep Married to Victim of Assassins in Cleveland

SUSPECT RIVAL GANG

Widow Held as Police Seek Slayers of O'Neil, Alleged Bootlegger

Mrs. Pauline O'Neil, 26, who escaped gunfire of assassins when they shot down her husband, Charles O'Neil, in their home at 1875 East 79th st., Cleveland, last Wednesday night, was formerly Miss Pauline Eastep, of this city, it was definitely learned here today.

Mrs. O'Neil was being held today by Cleveland police for questioning. She told police her husband feared death at the hands of a rival gang, according to press reports.

Shoot Through Window

Five shotgun charges fired through a dining room window of the O'Neil home killed O'Neil instantly.

O'Neil is reputed to have engaged recently in large-scale liquor running from Detroit. He and Morris Asher, a friend who was in the home at the time of the shooting, were in Detroit last Monday and returned in airplane to see the Risko fight in Cleveland auditorium.

Widow Held

Mrs. O'Neil is being held by Cleveland police today. She is the daughter of Mrs. Clarence Beck, now of Columbus.

Pauline Eastep left this city four or five years ago, going to Columbus with her mother. There she married a man by the name of Evans, from Pittsburgh. Later divorced from him, she went to Cleveland where she married O'Neil last October, according to a former acquaintance of Mrs. O'Neil.

CO-EDS ROUTED

Forced Into Street When Fire Destroys Rooming House

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 24—Twenty coeds of the University of Missouri narrowly escaped with their lives early today when fire razed one three-story rooming house and damaged two others.

Flames enveloped the house before the fire was discovered. Coeds asleep in the home had no time to dress and escaped into the street clad only in pajamas and night clothes.

Coeds living in the Baker home lost all of their clothing.

SEEKS DEATH BY OWN HAND

H. W. Riley Found Unconscious in Gas-Filled Room at Parkersburg

Harry W. Riley, former Marion resident, remained in a serious condition today following his attempt last night to end his life in a Parkersburg, W. Va., rooming house. Reports from the Parkersburg hospital where Riley is confined stated that he was conscious but not out of danger at 10 o'clock this morning.

Riley, an examiner in the state auditor's office, was found unconscious last night in a gas-filled room in the boarding house where he had been staying. According to police reports a funnel connected with a gas jet by means of a rubber hose was found in front of Riley. He was revived by physicians and rushed to a Parkersburg hospital.

Note Found

A note left in the room asked that Riley's father, Felix Riley, of Athens, and Mrs. Lulu Riley, of Marion, his former wife, be notified.

Mrs. Riley obtained a divorce from her husband several months ago. A rule in contempt of court was served on Riley in Jackson, O., about a week ago, according to records in the office of the clerk of courts here. The rule in contempt was issued in the Marion county common pleas court, where the divorce was granted, as a result of Riley's failure to pay alimony as ordered in the divorce decree. Mrs. Riley was granted $1,000 alimony, payable in 10 monthly installments. Riley was also ordered to pay $25 a week for the support of a minor daughter.

Telegram Sent Here

Mrs. Riley was advised of her former husband's attempt to end his life in a telegram received at 8:50 o'clock last night from the Parkersburg chief of police.

When Riley left Jackson, where it is presumed he was examining records of Jackson county officials, for Parkersburg was not known here today.

MERCURY STARTS ON GRADUAL RISE HERE

Will Continue Upward, Forecast Says; Two Above Zero Last Night

Marion continued to move in the grip of near-zero temperatures today as Old Man Winter maintained a vigil over the city that has kept the snow and ice from thawing.

Last night's temperatures were a bit more moderate than those of yesterday morning, when the second severe cold wave of the year swept over the city. The mercury stood above the zero mark at all times last night, with a low mark of two above.

The temperature yesterday morning slowly rose from sub-zero levels to a high mark of 18 degrees yesterday, and then gradually receded to the low mark of two above last night.

Relief from decidedly frigid temperatures is predicted for tonight, with cloudy and warmer weather. Moderating temperatures may be accompanied by a light snow Saturday in some sections of the state, according to the forecast.

A year ago, the high temperature was 35 degrees, the low 22.

Aviators Escape as Plane Sinks; Pontoon Cracked

CINCINNATI, Jan. 24—Robert Dawson, pilot, and Donald Breeding, mechanic, today are the survivors of a peculiar airplane crash. Their plane, a Flamingo all-metal monoplane, equipped with pontoons for testing purposes, lies on the bottom of the Ohio river.

The motor failed as they were returning from a short test flight, yesterday, and the craft dropped onto the surface of the river, cracking a pontoon. The men were rescued in a small boat as the plane began to sink.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

PHILADELPHIA — Gordon Dooley, star comedian of the stage for many years, died last night at the home of his mother in Drywood. It became known today. Death was due to complications following an attack of pneumonia and pleurisy.

EIGHT OVERCOME

CLEVELAND—Eight persons, occupants of an apartment house, were overcome by fumes, thought by police to have originated from a fumigating liquid, here today. FIGHTS FIREMEN

Watchdog Blamed for Death of Horses in Fire

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 24—Prince, a large airedale trained to guard thoroughbreds at the fairgrounds race track at night against intrusion, today was blamed with the responsibility for the death of a number of the horses burned to death in the fair grounds race track fire.

The dog, taking resenters for intruders, fought off a dozen men who tried to bring the horses from the stalls, and finally had to be stabbed to death with a pitchfork. Eighteen race horses and two lead ponies were killed in the fire which burned two barns at the local track.

MRS. O'BRIEN FREED BY JURY

Acquitted of Having Participated in Shooting of Her Husband

CHICAGO, Jan. 24—Acquitted of having participated with Samuel Howard Dorr, her alleged paramour, in the murder of her husband, Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien today was resting from the rigors of her trial at the home of her father here.

The jury deliberated for three hours and 25 minutes before its members agreed on a verdict of "not guilty" last night. Five ballots were taken in all.

Weakened by the ordeal of her long incarceration and the strain of her trial, the young widow, an expectant mother, swayed as though she were about to faint when the verdict was read. Then she seemed to recover enough to sob her gratitude to the jurymen.

William O'Brien was fatally shot on the morning of Nov. 20 when he surprised Dorr in his wife's bedroom.

BANK AT DAYTON IS ROBBED OF $17,000

Three Daring Bandits Escape; Armed with Shotgun and Machine Gun

DAYTON, Jan. 24—Three bandits armed with a sawed-off shotgun and a machine gun held up and robbed the South Park Savings Bank here today, of about $17,000, just a few minutes after the bank had opened its doors for business.

There were two customers in the bank when the robbers staged what was one of the most daring hold-ups ever recorded here.

Five employes were in the bank at the time of the hold-up, which was one of the most daring robberies in local police annals.

The three bandits followed one of the employes into the bank. Two customers came in while the five employes were being forced to lie prone on the floor, as two of the robbers looted the safe.

The two customers were also compelled to lie down. O. B. Liming, the cashier, was injured by a severe blow on the head from the butt of a revolver when he attempted to rise from the floor and reach for a gun which was in a drawer of his desk.

O. B. Hale, chief engineer of the National Cash Register Co., one of the customers, told police that he positively identified one of the bandits as Robert Zwick, notorious bank robber of Hamilton, who is wanted here in connection with a number of hold-ups and robberies.

CITY RALLIES TO NEEDY'S AID

Clothing Being Piled Up in Y. M. C. A. While Many Calls Are Received

APPEAL IS ANSWERED

Spirit of Marion Comes to Front; Trucks Collecting Used Clothes

"We are coming Father Abraham, we are coming 50,000 strong." That was a stirring song that caused tears to well in the eyes of those who heard it, in times when the world looked black.

Today, that same song might be heard echoing faintly in the Y. M. C. A. building where Marion is responding to the call for clothes for its needy.

There is a spirit of giving in Marion, and it is going to stand the test today and Saturday. Many times Marion has been hurt by the whispers that it is a cold, harsh city, with each person interested only in his own welfare.

In one of the "Y" rooms where the clothes are being taken care of, there is a distinct odor of moth balls, reminiscent of other days. This scent rose from a stack of heavy winter underwear that some husband discarded when he started working in a steam-heated office.

30 Calls at Noon

Several Marion women did not stop at providing clothing for the poor, they brought cans of fruits and vegetables as well.

At noon today there were about 30 calls at the "Y" and at the Star office, from people who had clothes at their homes, and wanted someone to call for them.

All morning Earl N. Hale, of the Y. M. C. A., was out responding to calls, and Saturday morning the Star delivery trucks will be put into service.

There are many people in Marion who have no way of coming in contact with the poor of Marion. Their lives are not planned that they should.

But last night, as soon as the call went out from the Star for clothing, there were many calls from Marion's well-to-do people, anxious to be given the names of several children whom they might outfit with clothing.

This spirit will soon make the poor, half-clothed hungry children of the

DRIVERS ORGANIZE

Want To Form Union as Result of Greyhound Lines Strike

CLEVELAND, Jan. 24—Preparations for the formation of a new local union of Greyhound Lines bus drivers who went on strike yesterday, were being made here today, according to Peter Brown, local organization head. The group of Cleveland drivers, composed for the most part of strikers, met last night to form a local union. Application for a charter was made to the American Federation of Labor immediately after the meeting.

Officials of the Greyhound Bus lines today reported that the walkout of drivers in the eastern division after a disagreement over wages has not affected run schedules. Strike leaders, however, declared that bus operation is at a standstill.

Still Growing Los Angeles Fit at 50? Why Not at 100? Garbo Talks Only $150,000 a Year?

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24 — Los Angeles, stretching from the mountains toward the east to the great seaport on the Pacific, continues to grow and feel happy.

A proud native son talking by telephone to a friend in New York says sorry of all, "I am sorry for you. The sun is so bright here it puts your eyes out." And that is hardly an exaggeration.

Children with bare legs and bare arms play and grow in the warm air all through the Winter. No wonder they produce Californians like Helen Wills.

California has a "Fit at Fifty" club, which politely sends you an honorary membership and says it is indorsed by the Governor of the State.

California and every other State should have a "Fit at one hundred" club. In this country fifty should be only the beginning of fitness and hard work.

* * *

What ships are to the Clyde, packing houses to Chicago, big banks to New York, and fat goose livers to Strassburg, moving pictures are to this Hollywood land.

The two biggest billboards read "Garbo Talks." They don't even mention the lady's first name, which is Greta.

And "at last the voice of voices, Norma Talmadge."

Two ladies, Bernhardt and Duse, might dispute that, but they are dead. Normal Talmadge much alive.

A LADY stockholder in the Fox Film Co. complains that "William Fox paid himself a salary of $[illegible]." If that's true, Mr. Fox, like a distinguished servant of the East India Co., must be amazed at his own moderation.

One company that he controls pays each of two managers three times [illegible]. And moving picture stars have by him get $150,000 for one picture.

Even humble newspaper employes realize that modest $150,000 a year. It isn't what you are paid, but what you produce that counts.

Charley Chaplin has not made up his mind about the "talkies," although friends assure him that he would talk as well as he walks. He will come to the microphone in time.

* * *

Meanwhile he wants to give up comedy and play Napoleon, Hamlet and Svengali. Chaplin is a genius and would play the parts well. But to ninety-nine out of one hundred it would be Svengali, Hamlet and Napoleon playing Charley Chaplin.

Millions that are vague about Napoleon know Chaplin and would recognize him in any disguise.

THE telegrapher caused this column to say yesterday in the Los Angeles Examiner and other papers, perhaps, that "five hundred pounds of water are needed to produce a ton of alfalfa." Production of one pound of alfalfa requires five hundred pounds of water. Under irrigation a ton of alfalfa requires one million pounds of water.

Los Angeles would like you to know that in manufacture of automobile tires it is now the second city in the industry in America.

All great Eastern industries will eventually establish branches here, as the United States Steel Company has done, and, gradually, the Pacific branch will outgrow the Atlantic headquarters.

* * *

Half the water power in America goes to waste in this big ocean. Industry will harness all that and use the water for irrigation after the power is taken from it as it falls down hill.

* * *

This nation needs 250,000,000 more people to eat the food and use the automobiles, clothing, houses and radio sets the country could produce.

Some day 500,000,000 Americans will live on the hill tops and mountain tops, and fly down to business or to work on plains and in valleys.

Some perhaps, not feeling very well, will fly in airplanes carrying

U. S. Delegates Do Not Worry About Prohibition at London Parley Banquet

LONDON, Jan. 24—Americans in London do as Londoners do in spite of prohibition.

Last night's brilliant banquet at the Guildhall, when the parley delegates were entertained by the lord mayor of London, forced the cup that cheers to Americans [illegible] whether they think it cheers or not.

The traditional ceremony of a huge loving cup filled with rosy rum punch passing from lip to lip was carried out with all solemnity. All the Americans present participated, in addition to drinking copious toasts to all the countries represented at the party.

The Guildhall's marvelous orient, famed throughout the world for generations, were opened wide, promising punch, port, sherry, various vintages of Canterne and Bordeaux, two different champagnes, brandy older in years than the oldest delegate present, and cordials in a wide range of choice.

"Don't ask me why!"

Excuses a man seems never to understand; explanations that are embarrassing. Women who have learned of Midol avoid these unpleasant experiences:

Midol is not a narcotic; but it does banish the suffering which too often attends the menstrual period. It acts quite harmlessly, but effectively, on the organs affected. Safe, but swift; complete comfort comes in five to seven minutes. You will get this relief regardless of how hard a time you've always had. These wonderful tablets do nothing to hinder the normal, natural process of menstruation, so its only common sense to use them.

If you would spare yourself all suffering at this time, get Midol in a trim little case of aluminum for purse or pocket. Fifty cents at any drug store.—Adv.

Noiselessly he tiptoed to the head of the stairs, where the other man after pausing again to call softly for Mario to bring a candle, had started to descend. Jimmie softly followed.

On the landing below Jimmie was still at the murderer's heels. There was only one flight more to the upper room of the restaurant. In the depths of the basement he thought he could see the first flicker of a candle. Thank Heaven, in a metropolis which depended so entirely on electric light, candles were generally stored away inaccessibly. But the little man had stopped again. It must be now or never. Holding his coat close to him, Jimmie stepped silently and swiftly past, leaving his enemy by the breathing.

As ill luck had it, the man turned. His coat brushed Jimmie.

"Is any one there?" he said in a surprised voice.

Jimmie was now past—at the top of the stairs.

"Who's that?" repeated the voice sharply.

Jimmie cursed a expletive lisp. A vision of the fat Monsieur Villon with his "Que voulez vous?" flashed into his mind.

"Que voulez vous?" he puffed in a mumbled undertone, and was delighted to find how at the first trial he had so accurately hit off the fat old man's tone. He grunted and ponderously descended the stairs. He was praying desperately that the man above might not suspect, might not bother to ask what the proprietor was doing up there. Luckily he had not a torch. Jimmie knew—or he would, have used it when he first came out of his room.

To the Room Below

To his immense relief there was no further reply from above beyond a muttered grumble at the absence of light. Jimmie pursued his way down, controlling his anxious feet to Monsieur Villon's normal pace. In the basement he could now distinctly see harassed waiters starting up with candles. The customers were chattering in the dark restaurant, accepting the situation with laughter.

He stripped off his coat; as he reached the outside of the upper room some one who sounded like a waiter pumped into him and said "Pardon!" The voices of the diners on the ground floor grew quite plain as Jimmie, slipping swiftly downward, hung his coat on some pegs he had located just inside the doorway of the lower room.

Then he gave a deep sigh of relief—the first real breath that he had taken since he swung open the attic shutters. And that was a bare 10 minutes ago, though it had seemed like an hour.

A waiter carrying a tray of lighted candles appeared from below and turned into the restaurant. A moment later the lights were switched on again at the main, the fuses having been replaced. The waiter with the candles turned back, his curse inaudible in the cheer that went up from the diners.

The clatter of knives and forks was resumed as the lights blazed. Jimmie Renaire, an innocent figure in a dinner jacket, was disclosed about to mount the steps to the first-floor room. A puzzled look was on his face as if in wonder at the absence of light upon his arrival from outside. He even stopped a passing waiter and asked what had happened.

As Jimmie leisurely mounted, Neasden appeared from the upper room and called in a low but angry tone to the man out of sight upstairs. Then he turned around and he saw Jimmie. Renaire noticed that he looked annoyed at being thus seen talking to his companion above. Then:

"Good evening," he said pleasantly. "Here you are!"

"Afraid I'm a little late," apologized Renaire, coolly master of the situation once more. "And the whole place was in darkness when I arrived.

"The lights blew out, I understand. What have you done to your knee?"

"Fell on the stairs just now," lied Jimmie, brushing off dust from where he had knelt by the trapdoor. As he spoke, he was straining his ears for any sudden sound from upstairs denoting discovery of some clue to his attempt. None came, and he breathed more easily. After all, he was safe enough; he had replaced everything exactly as it had been; there was nothing to give him away; and he had bluffed his way out of the only difficult situation which had arisen. But it had been touch and go. He hoped, as he entered the room behind Neasden, that the little man upstairs would not remember to mention the incident to the proprietor. But even if he did, they would not necessarily suspect him.

Carefully Guarded Room

Once again the upper room was empty of customers except for the girl, whom Mario was helping to a dish. Jimmie began to realize that that upper room was carefully guarded indeed and that the general public was in reality denied access except when, like Hyslop, they knew of its existence and forced a way up. Yet No. 1 was clever enough not to close it completely; nominally it was open to any one and so above suspicion.

To his surprise Neasden at once took Jimmie over to the girls' table, and mentioning Mario away, introduced them with a smile.

"This is Zita—one of our happy family."

"I had no idea," lied Jimmie as one amazed.

"We have spoken together," said the girl smiling at him. "By No. 1's orders."

Jimmie managed to look even more astounded, though this remark only confirmed his previous suspicion, that his conversation with the girl Zita had been deliberately planned to test his secretiveness.

"And you scored badly off her," laughed Neasden. "Police officer you said you were, didn't you? No. 1 was so amused."

"Well, since I'm not to see him, I'm glad I've amused him," replied Jimmie, angling for further information.

Neasden, however, turned it off by leading him back to another table, the very one where Hyslop and Vir had sat the night before.

"A good girl, Zita," he confided to Jimmie. "Most useful to us. * * *"

He stopped, as Mario re-entered with a menu card, and ordered a meal with care. Jimmie studied him with a new interest.

It was the first time he had sat face to face with Neasden knowing him to be one of the spies he was after. He would need all his wits this time.

"Now," began the big man, when they had started, "I'm afraid I've treated you rather badly so far; but I've been extremely busy lately. I think I told you when last we met that my talk of burglary and so on was a blind. Have you any idea what our real game is?"

For a moment Jimmie was tempted to shake his head. Then he remembered that he was up against clever people who knew, moreover, that he himself was no fool. To make himself out dense, therefore, would be to court suspicion. And No. 1—he remembered with a shiver—had drastic methods with traitors.

Brains Always Tell

"I have a suspicion," he said deliberately. "If instead of pictures and collectors you had talked of, say, military secrets and foreign governments you would have been nearer truth?"

"Exactly," purred Neasden. "We specialize in obtaining any information required and in supplying it to those who commission us. In order to avoid suspicion, therefore, and continue safely in business, we have to lay our plans with great care. Have you noticed how often detection of crime is due to lack of forethought in the original plan, not lack of care in execution? Brains always tell. Our No. 1 is of course the master mind, but we others have to be of a high standard. Hence our desire to secure you!"

Jimmie bowed ironically and wondered to himself what to take next. So far he had merely concentrated on extricating himself without suspicion from his unsuccessful attempt on the Murchison; he had not yet turned his mind to the future. For the moment he was without a plan, but perceived that the best thing to do was to let events take their present course. He might thus learn something of value from Neasden himself.

"Well," he began briskly, "it's nice of you to say all this, but the question now is: What do you want me to do? My—er—brain is at your service."

"We are just concluding a piece of business—or rather by next Friday we shall have done." Jimmie easily read the Murchison sighter into this. "Our next order is from the same third party, a client who is now interested in tanks. There is a new type of tank-track in existence—secret at present. No. 1 has worked out a rough scheme of operations and you and I are to carry it out in our own way and with such additions and suggestion * * *"

He paused again as Mario appeared with their next course.

A Note for Neasden

Jimmie sat in silence, deeply disappointed.

He had hoped he was about to obtain fuller information about the spies' plans for the Murchison, and now realized he was not to be let into that secret at all. He didn't care a rap about new tank-tracks or the future activities of the No. 1 Performing Troupe, as the irrepressible Hyslop had nicknamed them. Indeed, if he pulled his job off, there would not be a No. 1 or a troupe at all by the time his help was required in the new matter.

Soon Mario left them once more and Neasden resumed his conversation. He was acting obviously on instructions from No. 1.

Suddenly Mario re-entered in haste and gave Neasden a folded square of paper.

Jimmie, affecting not to look, tried hard to read its contents, but the writing was small and close and he could not make out a word. Evidently, however, it was important, for Neasden rose.

"You will excuse me one moment?" he asked as he left the room.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

FRIDAY, and I have still got less luckie than I have ant, and I don't care. I was thinking I was glad the snow was all gone almost when me and Jubilee woke up, and that meant it would soon be summer and then we could have our vacation and could go places and do things, and then I got up and went and opened the window and a whole lot of snow came into the room. It had piled up on the window all till it hid about half the window and when I had pushed the rest of it off and looked outside it wasn't daylight yet, but I could see that it had been snowing all night and it was still coming down like feathers, and Jubilee had seen it too, and he stood there looking up at me like he was telling me what he would do if he was a boy and I was a dog. But if he was he would do just what I do. So I gave him the end of his rope and put him out of the window. Then I went down and done my fires and then instead of taking the milk pail and hiking out to the barn I grabbed the snow-shovel and hiked to Mr. Wagmore's and began digging the snow off the paths, and then I went in and was feeding my face when one front door bell rang and my mother went to it and it was Mr. Wagmore. He asted her if I was home, and I could see my father looking at me like he wanted to set me what mischief I had been up to, and Mr. Wagmore came in and said I was a fine and thoughtful boy, and he said he wanted to give me a dollar for my work but that nothing could pay for such thoughtfulness, so I put the dollar in my pocket and thanked him and he went, and then I had to tell all about it, and I wished he had gave me another dollar for my thoughtfulness. It would have been all right with me.

Younnies and Maggie and Feeble heard about it when they came in, and Feeble said that I was just wonderful. She said I was certainly going to be a remarkable man, and then she asted what I was going to do with the dollar, and I said Valentine Day would be here pretty soon. And my father said he hoped I was not going to spend all that money for a Valentine, and I said I hoped I was. Then my mother butted in and told my father that he was young once, and he said even if he was he wasn't a fool. My mother said he was no more fool then than he is now, and he didn't say any more. But he kept looking like he was wondering what she meant. So was I

Love's Reawakening

The Story of a Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Calmly Proceeds with Her Plans

WHEN the cartridges from Dicky's service revolver at last were in my hand and the weapon, important to harm—now—to protect—lay before me on my husband's writing desk, I found myself trembling as if I had just escaped some deadly peril.

For a few seconds I stood motionless, forcing myself to calmness, that I might consider the possible consequences of my action, so at variance with all my ideals, and yet so necessitated by my fears for Jeanie, and Dicky's refusal to unload his revolver before locking it away.

That Dicky would be seriously angry when he found out what I had done, I knew, but I also knew that he could not be more contemptuous of what he would term my "weakness" than I was myself. But my premonition that something evil would come of a revolver left loaded in the house with two restless and energetic small boys was so obsessing a thing as to armor me against either my own contempt or my husband's.

When would Dickey find out the trick I had played upon him? I hoped that it would remain my secret until after the holidays had passed and the Harrison boys were safely back in their Detroit home. But my conscience told me that unless Dicky were unusually absent-minded, he would discover what had happened when he transferred the revolver from the writing desk to the secret wall safe which he was planning to equip with a lock.

But, I told myself comfortingly, at least I had a day's respite from worry, for Dicky could do nothing about the lock until he had returned from the hunting trip with his two older nephews. So I resolutely shut out all thoughts of any day save the present one, and locked the revolver away again in the place where Dicky had left it. The cartridges I kept, with the grim reflection that hunting for a sleepy intruder no more discomfort than for a bomb. I searched Dicky's room until I found his cartridges and took them all with me to the room I was occupying during the holidays because of our many guests.

Madge Proceeds

My stories rose, despite my guilty conscience, as I locked all the cartridges safely away with the certainty that Dicky would have to make a trip to a shop and purchase more before he could load his revolver again. And it was with the resolve to let no further thoughts of the weapon trouble me, that I took up the list of things I had planned for the day.

The promised explanation to my mother-in-law of what my early visit to the basement with its unlooked frightening of Katie had meant, an interview with my father about the changes in the big cellar room I wished to make for the boys' Christmas—a call upon the Tiers to set in motion the plans I had evolved, and the expedition of the two small boys for Christmas greens—how should I get them all in? I quailed before the prospect for an instant, then squared my shoulders and went in search of Katherine.

"Could Noel spare you a few minutes longer?" I asked.

Katherine smiled and motioned toward the open door.

"Listen, and your question will be answered," she said.

Through the opened door of Noel's room came the sound of a guitar softly strummed in accompaniment to Mary's lovely voice singing old ballads which are the young musician's favorites.

The Boys Are All Set!

"I have no further scruples," I laughed. "Will you get Junior and Roderick—with provisions and equipment—ready for a trip for Christmas greens with the accompaniment of a picnic lunch in the woods?"

"With a fagot fire and broiled bacon!" Katherine surmised, and I nodded as I hastily explained my Christmas plans, and my concern for the boys. The last words had not left my lips when Katherine took me by the shoulders and turned me toward the door.

"With a program like that, don't waste time in explanations," she said. "Get goin' chile, I'll see to the young'uns."

She kept her promise readily. When, after a long interview with my mother-in-law who insisted upon quizzing me exhaustively and carpingly about the Christmas plans, and a shorter colloquy with my father, who enthusiastically endorsed everything, I went back to Katherine, I found everything in readiness. Roderick and Junior, dressed for the woods save for their caps and outer coats, were standing guard over the campfire equipment and the luncheon boxes in the side hall.

"You'll witness an authentic case of spontaneous combustion if they have to wait much longer," Katherine whispered, adding aloud: "What isn't any one else doing with you?"

I shook my head reservedly.

"Father has a cold. Noel, of course is out of the question, and Mary——"

From the stairs above us came Mary's voice, raucous, shaken.

"But Mary isn't out of the question. Please, Auntie Madge, take me with you! I shall stifle if I stay in this house another minute."

One can never let a derby hat become "old and comfortable," as he may a felt one. It lasts it to be seen.

FUNERALS HELD FOR BUS CRASH VICTIMS

Every Facility of State Directed Toward Attempt To Safeguard Highways

BEREA, Jan. 24—As heart-torn and grief-stunned families buried the first of the 10 dead victims of last Wednesday's tragic school bus crash today, every facility of state, county and civic agencies were directed toward an attempt to safeguard Ohio's highways against further disasters.

The first funeral for victims of the crash here in which nine small school children and a bus driver were killed and one child was injured, was held at 8 a. m. today. Services were conducted at St. Adelbert's Catholic church for 10-year-old William Pastoreck.

At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon funeral services were to be held for William, 14, and Vernon, 7, Davidson at the home of their parents in Brook Park village. Ethel Davidson, 12-year-old sister of the two dead boys is in Berea Community hospital recovering from injuries received in the crash. She is the lone survivor of the disaster.

Funeral services for the six other child victims and the bus driver, John Taylor, 36, will be held tomorrow.

Formal verdict of Coroner A. J. Pearse on the bus crash probably will not be made public until tomorrow, it was indicated today. The report, according to Coroner Pearse, will place the blame for the disaster on John Taylor, the bus driver, whom he charges was guilty of gross negligence.

Support of Gov. Myers Y. Cooper was asked today by Fred H. Caley, chairman of the traffic division of the Ohio Safety council, in an attempt to force legislative enactment of a drivers' law as a remedy to safeguard the state's highways against future disasters.

State Attempts To Tear Down Thayer's Alibi

CANTON, Jan. 24—Seeking to tears down the denial of Albert L. Thayer New Castle, Pa., architect, that he solicited a $7,500 bribe in connection with the construction of the Molly Stark tuberculosis sanitarium, Special Attorneys planned to resume their cross examination of the defendant in his bribery trial here today.

Thayer's testimony that he was enroute to Canada at the time he was alleged to have solicited the bribe from George F. S. Melbourne, general contractor, was attacked by Prosecutor James M. Aungst late yesterday. Aungst produced newspaper files which he said showed that Thayer was not on his way to Canada.

ROCHESTER FIVE STOPPED BY SHOVELS

SCHWAB, APPLEGETT FEATURE 31-24 WIN OVER EASTERN QUINT

Locals Clinch Contest with Last Minute Rush in Closing Period

A MARION STEAM SHOVEL composed of five men last night opened its jaws to a bite of extraordinary proportions, and tugged and dragged mightily. When the smoke had cleared away, the Rochester Oldsmobile five had been lifted from a long unbroken string of victories and lowered on the rocks of defeat, decisively.

A burst of enthusiasm rallying around Schwab and Applegett, in the last few minutes of play bolstered the local five's score to 31 points, and decisively pulled the game out of reach of the visitors, who ended with a total of 24 points.

A crowd of 350 shivered in the frigid interior of the Steam Shovel gym last night as the Shovels gradually overcame a slight lead rung up by the visitors in the first few minutes of play. They also saw the teams race neck and neck to end the first half with a score of 12-all.

Scores of the two teams alternately rose and fell during the last half, as the game grew harder fought. Early in the half the Oldsmobiles rushed their basket to obtain a five point lead over the Shovel five, only to see it fade as the locals pushed the score to 22 all. It was then that the Shovels turned loose a scoring attack which netted them nine points and victory, and held the New York state quintet to but two more points.

Schwab kept the Marion cage warm with his baskets, with a total of 14 points, four field goals and six foul goals. Only one of the seven fouls eluded his shots. Applegett figured in the final scoring splurge by chalking up four points in the last few minutes. Earlier in the game he had accounted for two more. Compton, who returned to the fray after a short respite, and Schwab dropped the last two buckets.

McNeil, a guard, led Rochester scoring with seven points to his credit. Garvin at forward was a close second with six.

JUNIOR HIGH TEAMS WILL MEET TONIGHT

First Game of City Championship Series Scheduled at Vernon Heights

The annual battle for the Junior High school championship of Marion will get under way here tonight when Central and Vernon Heights meet at the gym of the latter team. The contest will be called at 7:30 o'clock.

For the first time in years, Vernon is expected to give Central a real battle for the Marion pennant. The Central will send a more experienced team into the game having played more contests. Vernon, on the other hand, is boasting of better material this year.

FINAL KICK GIVEN TO WITTENBERG; COURT GAMES RULED OUT

Contests Played with B. A. A. Teams Declared No Count in Standings

COLUMBUS, Jan. 24—Wittenberg college seems to be entirely out of the running as far as the Buckeye conference is concerned, officials of the conference having ruled that all games with the Lutheran institution shall be regarded as non-conference.

This was done, despite the fact that every team in the Big Six, which is now reduced to a "Big Five" had scheduled two basketball games with Wittenberg. Wittenberg withdrew from the conference in December and provided that the action should take effect at the close of the football season. Without any serious thought on the subject, officials and coaches considered that the Lutherans were in the basketball race as they had agreed to play out their basketball schedule, which was drawn up at the close of the 1929 season.

The result of the whole mess, is that the standings in the conference basketball race, have been altered, to the credit of one team and the discredit of two others.

Victories which Miami and Cincinnati scored over Wittenberg, and the defeat which Ohio suffered at the hands of the Lutherans have been erased. Cincinnati still remains in the lead, however, with three wins and no defeats.

The decision, which finally formally kicks Wittenberg from the conference, is hampering the style of the Big Six, which had almost full-sway of athletics in Ohio. It was hoped that Wittenberg's withdrawal would not take effect until next fall, when another team would be chosen to fill the place of the Springfield school.

The other five members will not cancel their scheduled games with Wittenberg, officials said, but the games will not count toward determining the championship.

The conference standing as revised follows:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Cincinnati	3	0	1.000
Ohio Wesleyan	2	1	.667
Ohio University	1	1	.500
Denison	0	2	.000
Miami	0	2	.000

Giant of Ring Will Make Debut Before Thousands

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—They are going to remove the lez chains from Primo Carnera, the wild man of Padua, at Madison Square Garden tonight and let him snort and snarl and romp and stomp before the very eyes of the affrighted thousands. Six feet, nine inches by the tape, and 275 pounds by the scale, the Neolith finally is to be allowed at large after a month of captivity in America and, with his keepers at a distance for the first time, one fears the worst for Big Boy Peterson, who has consented to assist with the exhibition.

The latter is scheduled to go 10 rounds and, if it goes six, everybody will be violently startled, including the Big Boy himself. His routine calls for four fast rounds and one of the fastest finishes in the history of boxing. This is for ordinary chumps. As a valuable chump in his own right, Carnera is about as ordinary as a ramless stepladder, so if Big Boy isn't there at the scheduled finish, everything will be quite according to the script.

Anyhow, it is supposed to be strictly a one-man show, featuring the prehistoric throw-back of a man, with all of his extraordinary adjuncts—his specially-made shoes in which to stomp around, his specially-made gloves with which to hit. Nobody, it seems, has thought of the specially-built ring in which he is to fall.

As a matter of fact, he is not supposed to fall at all tonight. Big Boy not only is giving away 75 or 80 pounds in weight and some seven or eight inches in height and reach but he is an admitted bozo, who fights plenty wisely but not too well. The press agent of the enterprise refers to Big Boy's "superior knowledge" but neglects to state that his knowledge of canvas is unexcelled.

At that, it looks as though they are going to sell the place out to some 20,000 admissions, so great is the mastodon's personal attraction with the populace. They have been following him around for weeks, gaping at him, spellbound, like so many yokels in a freak-museum; so it is only natural that they are going for this one-to-five-dollar box office price in order to see him make his first—and maybe his last—fight in America.

It doesn't figure to be his last fight, however. This guy must have something or he couldn't go in there and brannigan with Stribling through two tough fights. Even the good ones couldn't put Stribling on the floor but Primo arose from a tumble upon his haircut in London and dropped William in the next minute of play. He won the fight on a foul in the following round. He went seven rounds with William the next time out before being disqualified for hitting after the bell.

Perhaps, therefore, it wouldn't be a second-class idea to be a little charitable with the big lummox. He's only had about 50 rounds of actual fighting so far and it will be asking the limit to expect him to go in there and fight like a champion tonight. As a matter of fact, he will do all that can be reasonably expected of him if he wins before the limit of 10 rounds.

JU JITSU EXPERT ON MAT CARD NEXT WEEK

Will Wrestle Dan Copen in Semi-Final at Steam Shovel Gym

Wrestling fans will be given a treat at the Steam Shovel gym here Monday night when Tetsura Hygami, Japanese ju jitsu expert of California, will meet Dan Copen of Columbus in the semi-final of Bennie Criswell's program.

Hygami will give the Columbus boy an exciting 30 minutes. The Jap specializes in holds that are seldom seen in the ring here. Both men are in the welterweight class.

The main go event will bring together two heavyweight in Glenn Wade of Mississippi and Freddy Grubmier, the Iowa snake. A preliminary bill will complete the card.

The venom of snakes is almost as fatal to vegetable as to human life. Cucumbers, sunflowers, and so on, when inoculated with rattle-snake poison, wither slowly and die.

RACE MEET WILL BE HELD AT TRACK HERE WEEK OF AUGUST 11

Strongest Schedule in Years Mapped Out by Short Ship Circuit

CLEVELAND, Jan. 24—Twelve weeks of harness racing for Ohio were carded today following a meeting here of Ohio Short Ship Stewards. The schedule is one of the strongest announced in years.

The much-prized week of June 16 went to Mansfield on the card. Mansfield, according to pre-meeting rumors, had threatened to run in opposition to the Grand Circuit opener at Toledo. They failed to carry out the rumored threat, however.

The schedule of the short ship follows:

Urbana, May 26 to 30.
Norwalk or Greenville, June 2 to 7 (tentative).
Elyria, June 9 to 14.
Mansfield, June 16 to 21.
Toledo, June 23 to 28.
North Randall, June 30 to July 12 (two weeks).
Kalamazoo, July 14 to 19.
Toledo, July 21 to Aug. 2 (two weeks).
Mansfield, Aug. 4 to 9.
Marion, Aug. 11 to 16.

Y-INDUS CAGERS TO PLAY TWO CONTESTS

Meet Crestline at Y. M. C. A.; Play College Reserves Saturday

A hard week-end schedule will be inaugurated tonight by the Marion Y-Indus cagers when they play Crestline at the Y. M. C. A. The contest will start at 8 o'clock and will be preceded by a preliminary bill.

The locals will journey to Tiffin Saturday night to play the Heidelberg college reserves.

Roush will be out of the local lineup this week. He is suffering from mumps at his home. Lockwood and Gillis, however, are in good condition for the fray.

BERRY GAME'S STAR SCORING 19 POINTS

Defeat Is Second in Row for Bucktown Cagers; Murphymen Stand as Heavy Favorites To Win Flag

BY KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

BUCYRUS, Jan. 24—There is a mystery in this north central Ohio city and it hinges around its basketball team. After going through the early part of the season undefeated, the Bucyrus High school cagers last night dropped its second North Central Ohio league contest to Mansfield, 34 to 23. Last week the locals were beaten by Harding, of Marion.

Coach Jay Winters is unable to account for the sudden slump that has pulled his team from what promised to be a successful season down to last place in the N. C. O. league standings. And unless his boys start fighting they seemed destined to finish in last place.

Bucyrus' greatest trouble last night was Berry. As that boy played last night he would be a thorn to most anyone's side. He was more than a thorn to the Bucyrus team, he was a pain in the neck followed by a headache. Today his basket shooting seems just a nightmare for he scored 19 of the 34 points scored by the Murphymen. That was more than enough to upset any impressions that Bucyrus had relative to the better team.

The situation was not as bad as I have painted it. Bucyrus forced Mansfield in the second and third quarter but the showing made in the first and final periods accounted for the one-sided score.

With Emery making four of the five baskets, Mansfield scored 10 points in the first period before Bucyrus figured what it was all about. Three foul goals gave Bucyrus only scores of the session.

Bucyrus snapped out of it in second period with Lerch and Ha... playing the stellar roles. After ... five minutes of play, Bucyrus ... the score at 10 all. Then Mans... got started again and the half ... with the score standing, 19 to ...

Until the last few minutes of third quarter, Bucyrus put up a ... fight. Mansfield was forced to ... itself to protect its lead. A minute rally gave Mansfield a ... 27 to 20.

The closing period was all Mansfield. Playing a stalling game, Mansfield had Bucyrus guessing all time.

Lerch was the only Bucyrus ... able to break through the Mans... defense. He counted eight points ... four baskets.

By beating Bucyrus, Mansfield jumped to the front as the strong... team in the league. Shelby remains a first place tie but has not ... strength exhibited by the Mansfielders.

The lineups:

Bucyrus	G	F	Mansfield	G
Lerch, f	4	0	Hummel, f	...
Talbott, f	3	4	Emrick, f	...

"What Can I Do If They Foul Me?" Scott Asks

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—"I don't like to win fights on fouls but when they foul me—what can I do?

"I've won five times on fouls but each time I would have won anyway.

"I have never yet fouled an opponent and I have engaged in 90 fights."

Phil Scott, the British heavyweight champion who meets Jack Sharkey, the American former sailor, in a scheduled 15-round spectacle at Miami, Fla., on Feb. 27, made the above assertions in an interview today. The Englishman voiced his views while he was playing a leisurely game of indoor golf with the writer on the miniature course at Madison Square Garden.

"Can't something be done to insure the public a run for their money when they pay stiff prices for seats at what are billed as major fights?" he was asked.

"I don't know what can be done about it," he replied. "When a fighter is fouled, he's fouled."

The suggestion that when a boxer goes down from a low blow, "time out" be declared until he recuperates so that he can be sent back in to continue the bout, left Scott cold.

"I can't see the idea," said Scott. "A foul is a funny thing to define. You'd think that it wouldn't be long after you were hit a low blow before you could continue but that's all wrong, your legs just wouldn't support you.

"I know because I've been fouled plenty. I've been fouled by Paulino, Yale Okun, Ricardo Bertazolla, by Sandwein and by Otto Von Porat. I felt the effects of the Von Porat foul blow for two weeks. I didn't get over it until I had returned to England. As much as I would like to have gone right back at Von Porat that night I couldn't, my legs would not have held me up. It's in the legs that you feel it most.

"Why, I actually got yellow jaundice from the effects of the foul blow Yale Okun delivered. They gave me the cold water treatment and I contracted yellow jaundice.

"I hope I'm never mixed up in another foul fight. I certainly hope Sharkey keeps his blows up. I figure he'll be chucking it after the fourth round. I'll beat him because I can outbox him."

Scott is a genial chap, 30 years old, slightly over six feet tall and weighs at present 215 pounds. He has light brown hair which he wears slicked back from a low forehead. His face is not as battered as that of the average fighter. He is married and has two daughters, June, seven years old, and Iris, six months. His wife never sees him fight. He calls his home "Peace Haven!"

The Englishman plans to leave for Florida next Tuesday to begin training. He will work out in two places—at Swanky Palm Beach so that society can get a look at him and at Miami Beach.

Some men have to grow angry in order to utilize what backbone they have.

SAYS BYRD NOT IN ANY GREAT DANGER

Explorer's Representative Declares Fuel Ample for Heat; Not on Reduced Rations

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—That Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his companions are in no great danger and will "come through" without trouble was expressed by Byrd's associates here today. Byrd's Antarctic expedition is threatened with having to spend another winter on the ice barrier with the possibility of insufficient food.

"While it is true that the expedition is not fully equipped to spend another winter in the Antarctic there is no immediate shortage of the food supply," declared Capt. H. H. Railey, personal representative of Byrd here. "There is ample fuel for heat and operation of the radio. The men are not on reduced rations. There is no immediate prospect they will be."

In extreme circumstances whale, seal and penguin will sustain life, Railey pointed out.

"It is believed that through the kindly offices of the state department, which has instructed the American ambassador at London and the American minister at Oslo to seek the cooperation of the whaling companies whose vessels are now fishing in the Ross sea, a navigable passage to the Bay of Whales will be discovered, or forced, if necessary," he said.

MERCURY RISES BUT MOVEMENT IS SLOW

May Be Several Days Before Frigid Weather Definitely Subsides

CHICAGO, Jan. 24—Gradually rising temperatures today brought promise of relief from the sub-zero wave which has prevailed throughout the middle west and central states for the past four days.

Although a general rise is predicted throughout the eastern and southern section of the north central states, it will be several days before the frigid weather definitely subsides, the government weather bureau here reported.

Temperatures of twenty degrees below zero are still common in sections of the northwest.

Thermometers in the lower great lakes region still hovered near the zero point today, but were showing a gradual rise. The southern Illinois towns of Harrisburg and Carbondale still suffered in ten degrees below zero cold.

MURDER THEORY IS ADVANCED IN DEATH

Snyder found the body in a room on the second floor of the home. A sponge, which had been saturated with chloroform, had been tied on the woman's face with a towel.

Sheriff George W. Benham and Coroner Theodore F. Scheer, who were called to the scene, at first believed the woman had committed suicide.

An investigation disclosed that the house had been ransacked, and police are investigating the death today on a theory of murder.

She was formerly a school teacher at Lincoln, Neb., and came here about a year ago.

BRITISH AND FRENCH DELEGATIONS MEET

Americans Hold Own Session and Discuss Questions Dominant in Parley

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
Marion Star Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 24—The first major effort to reconcile the radically divergent French and British views on the method of naval armament limitation—whether by global tonnage or by categories—was made today in the private discussions of delegations at the London naval conference.

The complete French and British delegations met at 10 Downing st. to consider the reports of their experts who had been working together. After some discussion an official announcement that "encouraging progress had been made" to reconcile the opposing views was issued. At the same time it was stated the experts would continue their work together.

The complete Italian delegation followed the French delegations to Premier MacDonald's official residence for a conference with the British delegates. Inasmuch as both the French and Italian conferences with the British were primarily concerned with European problems, the American delegates did not participate in either.

The Americans held their own meeting this morning, and discussed in general the questions now dominant at the conference negotiations.

After the meeting, Secretary of State Stimson in summarizing what has been accomplished thus far said that "the progress made has been very encouraging." He declined, however, to be specific.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Hortense Gaskell, a student at Ohio State university, was not at home when the accident occurred. Instead of becoming frantic as his body was being scorched, Danner put out the fire and called an aunt. He was found in a semiconscious condition, and was taken to the hospital.

Building Program Halted As Senate Fails To Act

All Recommendations for Additional Appropriations To Carry on Federal Courthouse and Postoffice Plans Must Wait

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 — The administration's plan to launch a new wave of public building over the country today faced long delay as a result of the failure of the senate to act on the Elliott $230,000,000 public buildings bill, passed by the house.

All recommendations for additional appropriations to carry on the federal courthouse and postoffice program will wait until the senate acts on the measure, Rep. Wood, Republican, of Indiana, chairman of the house appropriations committee, announced.

At the same time Senator Moses, Republican, of New Hampshire, chairman of the senate public buildings committee, began an effort to speed up the Elliott bill by calling a meeting of the committee on Saturday.

There is no assurance, however, that a prompt report by the senate committee would be followed by speedy enactment of the measure. With the senate devoting all of its time to the tariff, there is little likelihood of consideration before the latter part of February.

The bill also faces the prospect of many amendments in the senate, some southern senators, critical of the present building commission's method of allotting new buildings, may insist upon amendments to increase southern allotments.

Hundred Shipwrecked Passengers Forced To Spend 2 Weeks with Dangerous Criminals in Penal Colony

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 24—Shipwrecked in the historic Straits of Magellan, approximately 100 of the 1,100 passengers of the German tourist steamer Monte Cervantes today faced the possibility of spending a fortnight with some of the world's most dangerous criminals.

Most of the shipwrecked passengers were taken aboard the Argentine war transport Vincente Lopez when the Monte Cervantes went ashore in Beagle Channel in the Straits of Magellan. But 100 of them, because of insufficient accommodations, had to be landed at the Argentine Penal colony at Ushuia.

The Argentine government is taking all possible steps to remove the passengers from this lonely outpost with all speed, but it will be at least 12 days before rescue ships can reach them. In the meantime, they will have to get along as well as they can with convicted murderers and assassins as their companions.

Reports here indicate that the liner, a vessel of 12,000 tons, will be a total loss.

Finding oil on his premises will make a different kind of man out of any man.

It takes a small man to conceal the fact that he considers himself important.

Landing Tuna Fish Done by Electrocution

SAN DIEGO—Landing a fish may be the real sport of the present day Izaak Walton but when the fish weighs a hundred pounds or more it is altogether a different problem. At least tuna fishers off the coast of Mexico who take their sport seriously feel that way. With the assistance of General Electric motors they have rigged up a system of electrocuting the fish after they are safely landed on their boats, so the fight goes, it is often comparatively easy to pull them in.

Tuna fish run in different schools according to size. In one school they will average about 30 pounds, in another the average will be 50 pounds and so on up to 300 pounds. These fish can not be caught in nets and it is necessary to use poles and hooks. Up to 50 pounds a single man with a good pole and line can land a fish without much trouble. When the school averages 100 pounds or more two or three men will generally be put with lines which extend to a common line and one hook are necessary and then is often a battle to land the fish.

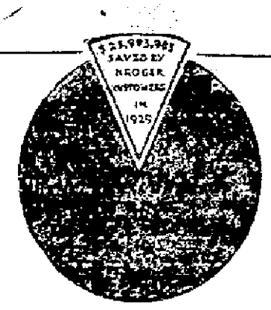
KROGER leads the way in this great ECONOMY SALE



All the foods that Kroger customers consumed during 1929, if figured at the average price of these foods at grocery stores throughout the country, as substantiated by bulletins published monthly by the United States Department of Labor, would have cost them $25,993,983.33 more than they paid at Kroger's. That's quite a slice of money that Kroger customers saved. These figures are based on the savings which Kroger customers made in the purchase of twelve basic food items last year. These items, those that the average family uses almost daily, were: Butter, Fresh Eggs, Bread, Sugar, Coffee, Flour, Corn, Peas, Tomatoes, Lard, Meat and Potatoes. The ability to offer the freshest of quality foods at such tremendous savings is attracting more and more women to Kroger Stores each day.

HE WAS LIFELESS AND DESPONDENT

But ALL-BRAN made him wide-awake and well—doctor prescribed it

CONSTIPATION ruins hopes, saps strength. Yet thousands of sufferers have found the way to relieve and prevent this disease. Read how this man rid his system of constipation.

"During the three years before ALL-BRAN cured me, I experienced more embarrassing moments than I care to tell of. Being lifeless, dull, logy and despondent, I could not keep my job. My friends didn't want my company and I was tired of being asked 'What in the world is the matter with you?'

"After spending much money for treatment, I finally found a doctor who advised me to eat ALL-BRAN three times a day. I did this for three months and I didn't need to be told that I looked better . . . I felt better and acted better . . . I am still using ALL-BRAN every morning and have no trouble now whatsoever." (Name and address upon request.)

Guard against constipation by using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to prevent it—to relieve it. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Far better than habit-forming drugs and pills.

ALL-BRAN is 100% effective. Doctors recommend it because it promotes natural elimination. Serve it with milk or cream. Use it in cooking—muffins, bread, etc. Delicious recipes on the package. Grocers sell it. Restaurants, hotels, dining-cars service it. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MYSTERY PLAY NEXT ON MIMES' PROGRAM

Public Presentation of 3-Act Drama Set for Next Week

Second three-act production and second public performance of the Marion Mimes, little theater organization here, will be given next Thursday night in Central Junior High school auditorium.

Where the first play, "Adam and Eve," was a comedy, the second is to be a mystery play, "The House of a Thousand Thrills," dealing with the theft of a valuable set of emeralds.

This in itself is not an extraordinary theme, according to the Mimes' board, but when it is considered that out of a cast of 11 players nearly everyone turns out to be a crook of some stripe or hue, the mystery takes on a different complexion.

"The House of a Thousand Thrills," is now in its fifth week of rehearsal in the organization's rooms in South Main st. and final stage rehearsals are to be held in the school auditorium next Tuesday and Wednesday.

The cast for the mystery play is entirely different from that which appeared in "Adam and Eve," although most of the players have appeared in previous one-act plays done this season.

These players include Miss Betty Cristinger, Miss Arlouene Henney, Mrs. Fred Berg, Mrs. Rodney B. Home, Miss Louise Neal, Miss Helen Sifritt, Frank Barnhill, Dale W. Yambert, A. J. Haecker, Vaugha Fox and James Shipley. Murray Powers is play-director.

Trial by Jury

A TRIAL by jury is not always "cheapest in the long run" unless the chances of winning are very good, especially where the case is being prosecuted by the city or state.

Of course, if you are really not guilty of the criminal charge which may be preferred against you, and can definitely prove it, it is not necessary to have a jury—the court will free you of the charge if you can show you are not guilty.

A recent municipal court jury criminal case ended with a $100 fine being assessed the losing defendant. Had he pleaded guilty to the charge when arraigned, his fine would have been $100 an the costs $6.20, a total of $106.20.

Instead, he asked for a jury, and his total fine and costs, for juries are expensive things, ran to $207.00. It is obvious that his jury party cost him just $101.40 more than the case should ordinarily have cost him.

Municipal court officials don't particularly object to jury trials, for it means no money out of their pockets, but to have anyone ask for a jury in a criminal case, where the facts to be dealt with are very plain, appears foolhardy.

It is very probable that many persons who ask for jury trials do not fully understand just what a jury trial means, how much more complicated the trial is almost certain to be, and how much expense is involved. Attorneys don't particularly object to jury trials, as the fees are usually higher.

Preparedness

THERE' nothing like being ready for all emergencies, and especially in this slipping, sliding weather.

A young man man was seen walking down Center st. Wednesday, carrying a pair of crutches. He was lucky if he didn't have to use them at the next street crossing.

Earning Their Way

PASSERSBY saw men chopping and sawing wood in the small vacant lot in the rear of the Salvation Army headquarters on North State st. this week. It so happens that lodgers for the night were earning their room for the night.

Not only is an undesirable element of "roomers" avoided, but helpful work is done by these men. Those who are unwilling to work for a room shrink at the sight of the huge logs, which were formerly railroad ties, while those who are not afraid of work welcome the task as a means to earn a night's lodging.

The ties were furnished free of charge by the Pennsylvania railroad and were hauled to the Salvation Army headquarters by city trucks and wagons in odd moments.

A large portion of the sawed and split ties go to heat the Salvation Army rooms here, while loads of them are often distributed to needy families in the city for fuel.

NEED NIGHT CLUBS

So Says Grover Whalen—If They're Good Night Clubs

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24—"What Philadelphia needs is a few good night clubs."

The speaker—no less than Grover A. Whalen, police commissioner of New York. Talking at a dinner here last night which preceded distribution of the Bok awards to heroic policemen, Whalen declared "good" night clubs are almost a necessity.

"We have determined in New York that night clubs, conducted within the law, are a good thing for a city."

URGES REVOCATION OF DOCTOR'S LICENSE

Plastic Surgeon Convicted of Fraud Following Amputation of Girl's Legs

CHICAGO, Jan. 24—A move was under way here today to revoke the medical license of Dr. Henry J. Schireson, beauty dealer and plastic surgeon, who was found guilty of charges of fraud following the amputation of Miss Sadye Holland's legs, made necessary, it is charged, by a "beauty operation" performed by Schireson.

Schireson, who lists among his patients Peaches Browning, Fannie Brice and Sophie Tucker, was found guilty by the state medical committee last night on charges of fraud, character unbecoming a physician and gross malpractice. The committee recommended revocation of Schireson's license to practice.

A report returned by the committee filling 15 pages found the physician responsible for the condition of Miss Holland, whose legs were amputated after an operation was performed to straighten them. The first operation was done by another surgeon.

The operation showed a "woeful lack of ordinary medical knowledge," according to the committee's report.

Schireson charged Miss Holland $750 in advance for the operation and told her he was the "greatest plastic surgeon in the world," the report said.

Quaker Crackels . . . new invention of Quaker Oats Scientists. It's America's newest and most delicious cereal.

HERE'S a cereal that's really new. Not just "another cereal"—but something entirely different from anything you've ever tasted before. New in flavor, new in crispness . . . new in nourishment values.

It's called Quaker Crackels. It took Quaker Oats scientists 17 years of research to perfect this wonderful cereal. It cost close to $1,000,000.

How Crackels is made. What it is

For Quaker Crackels isn't just a single cereal. It's a blend of all that's best in three great American grains. It contains the vital energy of wheat. The rich nourishment of corn. The splendid proteins of oatmeal. Plus a zestful new blended flavor you never tasted before in any cereal.

Best of all, Crackels has a unique, fresh-from-the-oven crispness no other cereal possesses. It stays crisp in your cereal dish, in spite of milk and cream. The last spoonful as freshly crisp as the first. Crackels is America's crispest cereal because wheat, oats and corn have been blended and crisped together in just the right scientific proportions.

Buy Crackels today for breakfast tomorrow. Surprise your family with something deliciously different for breakfast. All grocers have Crackels.

American Legion Fixes 1930 Convention Dates

The convention is to center in Boston on the 6th to 9th of that month but overflowing into several other cities and towns of the state and even over the borders into adjoining states.

An earlier Legion event of state interest will be the convention of the Massachusetts division in Williamstown, July 21 to 26, inclusive.

Because he used Classified Ads and increased his income ten-fold

Various things raise individuals above the crowd. This young man wanted to improve his status in life. He merits his recognition today because he KNEW what he wanted—and WENT AFTER IT.

Yes, he went after it in the aggressive twentieth century way—by using SITUATION WANTED Classification of The Star. A Marion employer needed just such a man, saw his announcement, hired him and now both are preeminently SATISFIED.

Call and see us at The Star office, let us explain this modern method of position-finding to YOU!

Today's Review of Yesterday's Grain

CHICAGO, Jan. 24—Price reactions at Liverpool,, Buenos Aires and Winnipeg resulted in a lower range of wheat values on the local exchange yesterday. Selling was general, but with trade continuing of rather small volume the decline was checked by short covering, buying on resting orders and against privileges.

Corn acted heavy all session, being influenced by wheat and larger country offerings brought out by the favorable weather. Oats and rye were easy with the balance of the list.

Liverpool Reacts

Some reaction in prices at Liverpool was not unexpected following the rather consistent advance the past few days, but with the decline came reports of freer offerings of Argentine wheat as well as a quieter demand abroad with Continental markets dull.

Simultaneously it was noted that export demand in North America was quieter following half a week of improved buying. Sales yesterday were indicated at 200,000 to 300,000, largely Manitobas, and demand was called slack.

Argentine Sales Up

Cheaper freights have resulted in larger shipments from Argentina estimated at 5,200,000 bu. for the week. Broomhall now figures world stocks at 383,000,000 bu as of January 1, compared with 373,370,000 bu December 1, and 367,670,000 bu. a year ago, but 400,000,000 bu. two years ago.

A significant bit of news which was called to the attention of stock traders in yesterday's gossip, but received little or no attention from grain traders was an order for 1,850 tractors given to the Allis Chalmers Company by the soviet government.

Corn acted distinctly heavy throughout the session. Trade was light and locals were selling. Buying came principally from shorts who were then putting out lines again because of the market's apparent weakness and expectations for a larger movement. The latter was revealed in larger country offerings with bookings of 65,000 bu. in small lots. The cash market was somewhat easier in tone.

Cars of grain received and inspected: Wheat, 5; corn 195; oats, 21; rye, 3, and barley, 6.

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

After several successive increases in the price of butter, that item has nearly regained its normal footing for this season of the year, grocers say. A month ago, butter prices were several cents below normal, and quite a bit below any price for that season in years.

Quotations this morning rated the price of butter at 45@47 cents a pound, which grocers consider a normal. Little danger of further increases in price is forecast.

Fruit and vegetable prices were firm and unchanged today.

City Department Heads Complete Annual Reports

McFarland Again Stresses Need of East Fire Station

Also Urges Enlarged Alarm System; Fire Losses Show Decrease; Garbage Service and City Inspector Reports Also Prepared for Submission to Council

City officials in office during 1929 have virtually all completed their annual reports, which will be submitted to city council at its next regular meeting on Jan. 27.

Although it has not been a custom of most city offices to prepare such detailed reports at the end of each year the fact that there were several changes in the personnel of important offices, and also the fact that such reports were requested by president of council, C. E. Merkel, has resulted in such reports from virtually every department.

A marked decrease in the number of fires and the amount of fire losses, and renewal of the recommendation that a fire department be established in the east end of the city are contained in a report of Fire Chief T. J. McFarland.

Nearly 300 acres of land in the city were given better drainage by sewer correction work, the report of the building and sewer inspector shows. The garbage department earned the city several hundred dollars during the year, a report from that department indicates.

Reports of the police department and municipal court, and a number of officials in the employ of the city health department have already been filed with council. Others will be submitted Monday night, among them the fire department, building and sewer inspection department, city garbage department, and city treasurer.

Following are the last named reports in detail:

* * *

Fire Department

Two hundred and 71 fires occurred in Marion during 1929, causing damage estimated at $25,411.55, according to the annual report of T. J. McFarland, fire chief. This is a decrease of 45 in the number of fires and $10,660 decrease in damage in comparison with 1928.

For the first time since 1920, loss to business men and manufacturers showed a decrease, with mercantile and manufacturing plant losses not in excess of $2,200, including garages and filling stations.

Recommendation for a fire station in the east part of the city is made by Chief McFarland in his report. He also recommends that water lines be extended on several streets, and that the fire alarm system, which is now sadly overworked, be brought up to date. Need of a service ladder truck is also cited by Chief McFarland.

Value of the buildings and equipment owned by the Marion fire department is placed at $114,788.87 by Chief McFarland. Of this amount, $30,603.69 worth of buildings and equipment is at company No. 1 on South Prospect st.

Main Fire Cause

Chimneys burning out and setting roofs afire was the source of more fires than any other cause, the report shows. Chimney fires which were confined to chimneys alone accounted for 20 alarms; short circuit wiring caused 16 fires in automobiles and motorcycles; overheated furnaces set seven buildings afire.

Residences were the scene of 127 of the fires during 1929. Thirty-four of the fires were in automobiles, 19 calls were special calls, 13 calls were false alarms, eight calls were to private garages, while eight others were made for fires outside the city limits.

Telephone was the most popular communicator of fire calls, there being 199 calls phoned to the department during the year, as compared with 38 box calls, and nine verbal calls. Nine of the 15 false alarms were turned in through boxes.

March saw the greatest number of runs made by the department, with an average of one call a day during the month. May and June were slowest months for firemen with but 11 calls each month during those two.

Eight rescue calls were made to the department during the year, calling for the use of the inhalator and rescue work. One was to a drowning, two to new born babies, both of which died, two fatal heart failure cases, one fatal electrical shock, one fatal monoxide gas case. The department also recovered the body of a dead man from a well.

Accidents Listed

Three accidents to citizens occurred in explosions which the fire department investigated. One on March 11 was at the residence of Walter Willis, 763 Silver st. when an explosion injured John Willis, a boarder, and James Willis, his son. Another occurred on June 27 when a person cleaning a coat with gasoline was burned when fire under a hot water tank exploded the vapors. The last was on Aug. 6, when the residence of George W. Workman, 635 West Columbia st., was damaged and Paul Blankenship was fatally injured in an explosion.

Cost of operation of the seven automobiles and trucks belonging to the department reached a total of $723.68 for the year. A total of 1,027 gallons of gasoline and 39¾ gallons of oil were used.

Eighteen new fire hydrants were installed during the year, bringing the number in the city to 604.

Improvements made during the year include the purchase of a new chief's car, two new furnaces, and a new fire alarm transmitter and register.

A steady decrease in fire losses is noticeable in the report of damage done by fires in the last five years, according to Chief McFarland's report. Following are the losses of each year: 1925, $254,502.85; 1926, $73,871.89; 1927, $44,087.27; 1928, $35,499.26; 1929, $25,411.55.

* * *

City Inspector's Report

Two hundred and eighty-three acres of land were better drained at the end of 1929 than they had been during the year, through the medium of sewer correction, according to an annual report submitted to city officials by Carl Tozzer, city sewer and building inspector.

Correction work was done on East George st., Uncapher av., North Greenwood st., North Prospect st., and in an alley between State and High sts., immediately north of Center st.

In a number of instances, according to Tozzer's report, the sanitary sewer lines were draining into storm water sewers, with the inevitable result that all waste passing through such misconnected lines was draining into the river untreated. A number of such situations were corrected.

On 23 occasions, building work was ordered stopped because of failure of builders to comply with city ordinances, according to Tozzer's report. Eight corrections in electrical work were reported.

A total of $2,420.91 was spent in the department of building and sewer inspection during the year, or $29.09 less than the amount appropriated for the work in 1929.

* * *

Garbage Service

Marionites spent $19,405.80 to have garbage and rubbish removed from their homes each week, according to figures contained in an annual financial statement of the city garbage service department. These same persons also deposited $206 to secure the loan of garbage cans which are emptied each week by the employes of this department.

Business men, with a greater volume of garbage in many instances, but fewer in number, paid $6,303.82 to have garbage and rubbish removed as often as need be. Extra hauling, licenses for rubbish and dumping permits and other miscellaneous sources of revenue, bring the total receipts of this department for the year to $26,103.93.

Receipts topped expenditures of $27,674.79 by several hundred dollars. The biggest single item of expense in the department is payroll, that accounting for $19,620 or nearly two-thirds of all expenditures.

Hungry horses ate $2,410.00 worth of feed, while the less greedy automobiles and trucks required $2,110.38 for maintenance and fuel.

* * *

Treasurer's Report

The report of City Treasurer H. O. Snare was the shortest and simplest of all annual reports. It shows that the $750 appropriated for salary and three-fifths of the $25 appropriated for stationery were expended.

HARP TRIO CONCERT ON PROGRAM TONIGHT

New York Musicians Coming for Second Appearance Before Local Audience

Tonight at 8 o'clock in the Central Junior high school auditorium, the Zimmer Harp Trio, of New York City, assisted by Harry Newcombe, dramatic baritone, will make a second appearance in this city under the auspices of the Canto club.

For 10 years the trio has been organized under the leadership of Miss Nellie Zimmer, nationally known harp soloist. Others in the group are Marie Mellman, harpist, and Louise Harris, harpist and pianist. Miss Zimmer has the honor to have been first in presenting the harp in trio combination, to the American public, when she organized this trio.

The great golden concert harp has always been considered one of the most difficult instruments to play with its extended sounding board and complicated pedaling system. The tone of the harp is musically satisfying to the musician, and harmoniously capable of complete understanding and appreciation by the layman.

The program for tonight is as follows: "Nordische Ballade," Poenitz, Misses Mellman and Harris; "What is a Song?" Curran, Mr. Newcombe and Miss Harris; "Air de la Cantate," Bach, "Allemande," Bach, and "Legende," Renie, Miss Zimmer; "Eri Tu Che Macchiavi," Verdi, Mr. Newcombe accompanied by the harp trio; "Liebestraume," Liszt, "Le Tic Toc Choc," Couperin, and "Choral and Variations," Widor, Misses Zimmer, Mellman and Harris; "Bird Songs at Eventide," Cortes, and "The Green Eyed Dragon," Charles, Mr. Newcombe and Miss Harris; and "Bouree in G," Bach, "Cortege," Debussy, "Reverie," Rodgers, and "Fest Musik," Holy, Misses Zimmer, Mellman and Harris.

"KONJOLA ONLY MEDICINE THAT DID ANY GOOD"

"How I Wish I Had Known of This New Medicine Long Ago," Says Former Sufferer

MR. C. G. HASSENPLUG

Wherever Konjola, the new and different medicine is known many have exclaimed: "How I wish I had known of this new medicine long ago." No wonder, for Konjola makes good when all else tried has failed. Consider the experience of Mr. C. G. Hassenplug, Bolsteda Building, Sandusky. And his case is typical of Konjola at work. Praising this modern medicine of 32 ingredients, he said:

"Konjola is the only medicine that ever did me any good, and I tried scores of them in my search for relief from indigestion and chronic constipation. Even the lightest foods disagreed with me; I lost much sleep and became worn out and without ambition. A friend, who knows my experience of the powers of Konjola, insisted that I try it. Well, I did, and I am the happiest man in Sandusky as the result. Just four bottles of this wonderful medicine restored my digestion, and I am feeling better in every way."

Konjola is sold in Marion by Stump & Sams Pharmacy and by all the leading druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

THE sale of radio sets tells the tale of American prosperity. Sixty thousand in 1922, 10,000,000 in American families now. So says W. D. Terrell, radio chief of the Department of Commerce. Eight years ago 75,000 listened in, now more than 40,000,000 listen.

President Hoover was up before 5 o'clock in the morning to hear King George's speech.

A photograph of King George reading the speech was sent under the ocean by Western Union cable, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific over the telephone wires. And, because of difference in time, newspaper presses in California were printing the photograph several hours before the King delivered it on the same day in London.

COURT UNTANGLING STAPLETON'S CASE

Man Facing Maze of Charge In Records of City Tribunal

Ben Stapleton, 45, of 463 Uncapher av., has had decisions given in municipal court on two charges and is standing trial for a third, while in all probability a fourth will be dismissed, according to municipal court officials today.

A month ago Stapleton was arrested by police on charges of assault; filed in behalf of his wife, and intoxication. He was arraigned, pleaded not guilty, and released on $25 bond. He did not appear for hearing.

In the meantime, a charge of selling mortgaged property was placed against him by A. W. Hableutzel, who declares Stapleton sold him $100 worth of furniture that carried a $90 mortgage.

Stapleton was fined $25 on the intoxication charge, was ordered to pay $6 a week to his wife for the support of his minor children until he can get a better job, and then he must pay $10 a week as the result of the assault charge placed against him by humane officers in behalf of his wife. In case Stapleton fails to do this he must serve a suspended 60-day workhouse sentence.

Next Wednesday Stapleton will learn the outcome of the charge of selling mortgaged property when he is given a hearing in municipal court on the charge. His bond has been fixed at $500 pending this hearing and in the meantime he is held at city prison.

No action against him for "skipping" bond has been filed.

GRANGE MEETS

Mt. Olive Farm Organization Confers Degrees on Class of Candidates

Degrees were conferred on a class of seven candidates at the meeting of members of Mt. Olive Grange, No. 2848 last night at the grange hall. Members of the Agricultural class of the Green Camp centralized school sponsored the program which opened with a vocal number by Herman Powelson and a reading by Martha Mae Flach. Edward Blake contributed a piano solo and Elmer Allen gave a talk on "The Place of Science on the Farm." A vocal solo by Isena Schultz was followed by a talk, "High Spots of My Trip to the International Stock Show at Chicago," was given by Edward Schwanderer. A stunt by the agricultural class and a duet by Miss Frances Imbody and Herman Powelson concluded the program. The next meeting will be Feb. 6.

City Clerk Tabulating Building Permits for Year

The task of tabulating approximately 400 building permits issued from the office of city clerk between March 1, 1929 and March 1, 1930, to be forwarded to the county auditor, is now being completed by City Clerk Sylvester Larkin.

The new buildings and their valuations will be added to the tax duplicate of the city according to Larkin. The tabulation now being prepared shows to whom the permit was issued, for what style building, and the approximate value of the building.

Clothing Being Piled Up in Y. M. C. A. While Many Calls Are Received

City, a happier, better-clothed and better-fed part of the community.

It is not only the children, but the mothers and fathers who are being taken care of in the clothing responses. There were several overcoats and complete suits of men's clothing at the "Y" this morning, as well as heavy underwear, men's shoes, shirts and gloves.

The mothers and fathers are the ones in the family who worry most about their desperate condition. To the children, it is not so serious, for they're young.

There were dresses, underwear, shoes and hats for women in one room at the recreation building and there were several downy little blankets and jackets for a wee tiny baby.

If Marion keeps up the good work tonight and tomorrow morning, that it began so sincerely this morning, by noon Saturday the conditions among the poor will be relieved to a remarkable extent.

A bill has been introduced in the New York state senate making it a misdemeanor for any one to operate a radio, phonograph or other sound-making device in such a manner as to tend to disturb the quiet of the public peace. Good enough so far as it goes, but how's a law like that going to protect the wives of the fan-husbands who stay up all night to listen in?

$2,500,000,000 in Radio Products.

Chief W. D. Terrell, of the radio division of the department of commerce in Washington, estimates that the number of radio sets in use has increased from 60,000 in 1922 with an audience of 75,000 to at least 10,000,000 at the present time with an audience of 40,000,000.

"The total radio sales covering mostly receiving sets and accessories for the fiscal year, 1922, amounted to $60,000,000," Chief Terrell told a house sub-committee, "while in 1928 the figures given were $650,550,000.

"The department of commerce estimated that during the first three-quarters of 1929 sales of radio equipment," he went on, "reached a total of $360,897,207, with the heaviest quarter yet to be heard from," and he went on to say that the Radio Manufacturers' association states that, although $2,500,000,000 in radio products have been manufactured since 1922, there was no saturation point in sight.

It is hardly conceivable that an industry which has turned out a product amounting in value to $2,500,000,000 could have been developed in so short a period; could spring up and bloom in a financial way, as the saying goes, almost over night, even though the night actually was of something like ten years' duration.

Over 20,000,000 motor cars in use, and now 10,000,000 radio sets! It behooves Americans to be money-makers to meet such expenditures as are indicated by figures such as these. We just naturally have to be. As a matter of fact, we are the only people who think of making such expenditures and sometimes, sad to, say, we do not always think when we make them, or arrange to make them. There are times when we buy, and let the sellers do the thinking, and their thoughts are not always pleasing.

Enormous Deposits in 100 Banks.

The largest 100 banks in the country have deposits aggregating $21,839,162,969, a gain of $1,195,142,965 during the year just ended. These and other figures bearing on the financial situation of the country have been given out following a compilation by the American Banker.

The hundred banks in question range from the Guardian, of Detroit, with deposits of $51,714,530, an increase of $14,069,302 over 1928, to the National City, of New York, with assets of $1,619,651,250, which showed an increase in deposits of $700,523,874 over those of the preceding year.

It may interest Ohioans to know that six of the hundred banks are in their own state—the Cleveland Trust company, with deposits of $296,237,526; the Union Trust company, of Cleveland, with deposits of $239,-665,250; the Guardian Trust company, of Cleveland, showing deposits of $147,291,352; the Central United National bank, of Cleveland, with $84,742,540 in deposits; the Fifth Third Union Trust company, of Cincinnati, the deposits of which are $77,834,869, and the Ohio Savings Bank and Trust company, of Toledo, deposits $55,137,542.

Perhaps no better insight into the growth of the business of these leading 100 banks in recent years can be had than by stating that, whereas the aggregate capital stock of the institutions in 1921 was $705,149,959; their surplus and undivided profits, $1,069,-997,622 and their deposits, $15,153,255,555, at the close of 1929 their aggregate capital stock was $1,351,769,000; their surplus and undivided profits, $2,187,469,335 and their deposits, $21,839,462,969.

It is decidedly hard to reconcile the showing made by these banks with some of the pessimistic utterances one hears from time to time. When 100 of the banks of the country show a gain in deposits in five years of approximately $6,700,000,000, it's going to be somewhat difficult to convince the average citizen that business and financial conditions throughout the country are not on a fairly satisfactory basis. And this view is the more tenable when it is considered that none of the great mutual savings banks of the country are included in the list of the 100 banks considered.

If some of the wet members of congress do not stop twitting the dry members about the empty prisons and jails promised in the event of prohibition they are liable to give real offense. It's hardly good form to prod a sore spot merely to produce a squirm.

The British Labor government denounces the attack on it by a new London red paper financed by Moscow and will protest to soviet Russia over the breaking of its agreement with Britain not to permit Russian communist propaganda in England. The British Labor government has itself only to blame. Its folly alone is responsible for the reopening of diplomatic relations with Russia and its inevitably attendant consequences.

Ambassador Moore Goes to Warsaw.

Local friends and acquaintances of Alexander P. Moore, former Pittsburgh editor and publisher, naturally are pleased over his nomination by President Hoover to be the first American ambassador to Poland, the Warsaw legation having but recently been raised to the rank of an embassy.

It is very generally considered by those who keep in touch with such matters, that Mr. Moore's record as ambassador to Spain surpassed that of any preceding American diplomat in Madrid, where he held the utmost confidence of the Spanish government and people alike, and at the same time preserved to the full his spirit of whole-souled Americanism. Spain, more given to the following of form and precedent than any other European nation, was won by his conception of the best in diplomacy, which was to be at all times honest, sincere and frank and never to attempt to bargain. So different was his course from any formerly known to the Spaniards that its very novelty won them to him, and the confidence he established ran the gamut from the king and queen, the queen mother and the prime minister to the lowliest subject who learned to know him.

Having duplicated in South America the splendid impression he made in Spain, there is no reason to doubt and every reason to believe that he will prove equally popular in Warsaw and at the same time prove an unusually valuable representative of our president.

The papers of that city announce that Paris is again "La Ville Lumiere"—"The City of Light." And any visitor will admit that their claim is well founded—unless he takes a notion to wander away from the principal streets and boulevards.

A man, charged with being the fifth in the gang of bandits which secured jewelry and other valuables valued at $250,000 by holding up a dinner party in Snyder, New York, has been arrested in Miami, to which point he and his woman companion were traced. Four others having been convicted of participation in the crime, we have here another illustration that, sooner or later, all who enter upon a life of crime must pay the penalty.

Washington estimated that the population of the United States was 121,951,556 at 10:15 a. m., eastern standard time Wednesday. Any reader desiring later statistics may figure them out. There is a birth every thirteen seconds, a death every twenty-three seconds, an immigrant enters every minute and a half and one leaves every five minutes.

New York City has staked a $35,000,000 campaign to make itself more beautiful and healthful by keeping it streets spotless and disposing of its refuse by modern sanitary methods. Judging by the filthy condition of its streets and avenues in recent years, it will need every cent of the appropriation. The lack of cleanliness of New York has for some years been a subject for criticism by Americans returned from Europe so marked has it been in contrast to the cleanliness of leading European cities.

ONE RAY OF SUNSHINE.

Hazards of Child Labor.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Very different are the conditions under which the children of today live, vastly different than they were twenty-five years ago. Yet there are many thousands of children in our fair land today who from necessity, or because of greed and neglicence, are forced into industrial work. They are driven to labor during the very years when they should be given every advantage to develop physically and mentally.

In New York City alone 60,000 boys and girls enter industry each year. Health hazards arise almost immediately. Up to this point of their development, the state and society have expended much money upon their education and health. Now, perhaps, all that has been done may be sacrificed because essential care and protection will not be adequate to safeguard their health.

Under New York state laws, gainful employment for children under fourteen years of age is forbidden. Those between fourteen and seventeen years must show a certificate of physical fitness in entering industry, together with one showing a satisfactory school attendance. In that state, too, when a child goes to work he must attend continuation school, and there, once again, he comes under the watchful care of the health department.

In many another state such laws have not been made for children entering industry. In some states children are still made to work in the factory ten or eleven hours a day. In some of the rural districts children are employed on the farm, in work after school hours which takes them until ten and eleven o'clock at night to finish. In canneries, tenement house work and street trades children are made to work long hours.

In this machine age men and children are often brutally used up by the machine. "The rich sap of human life is being drained to oil the wheels of industry," we hear from one who knows.

Children in industry are more prone to accidents than their elders. An injured child sustains a greater loss than the adult, as he must carry his disability through life.

In 1928 there were 884 children under sixteen years of age who were given industrial compensation by the state of New York. The state, too, has a compensation law by which a child illegally employed, when the fact is determined, receives double compensation from the state. Not so the legally employed children. The child who is injured should receive a larger compensation, commensurate with his disability through life.

The actual results upon child health in industry may never be known. The high death rate from tuberculosis among children fifteen to twenty years of age, thousands of cases of malnutrition, of incipient disease, of infection in early years which have serious consequences in later life, of accidents—all these take their toll among children of our so enlightened country today.

Every effort should be made for adequate laws in all states and federal laws as well to maintain child health and abolish child labor. To give every child his birthright of health and happiness is not too much to ask of our affluent nation. It must be done for the good of the child and of the country.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

R. G. C. Q—How can I gain in weight?

2—What can be done for a patient who is very nervous and who can not talk when called upon to do so?

A—Improve the health in general and you will gain in weight.

2—Try to overcome the nervous condition by improving the health. There is always some underlying cause for extreme nervousness. This should be located and properly cleared up first of all. Have your doctor advise you.

M. S. Q—How can one reduce the hips?

A—Exercise and proper diet should bring about the desired results. For full particulars send a self addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.—Copyright, 1930, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper, questions on medicinal, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it can not be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Address all inquiries to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, in care of this paper.

Editorial Opinion.

HOUSE—SENATE.

Speaker Longworth specifically has made articulate majority public opinion with reference to the relative values of house and senate and the inaccuracy and injustice of the terms "Upper" and "Lower" branch of congress.

Called upon to define the proper appellation with respect to the legislative branch of the government, the public doubtless overwhelmingly would approve and indorse Speaker Longworth's conviction of a proper order of precedence in the evaluation of house and senate worth and importance as pillars of support of the national structure.

How to be rid of the senate is a problem that from time to time gravely and seriously has been considered by latter-day students of the government structure. Such consideration has not at any time been applied to the house.

But the senate should have a proper function, under the wise provisions of the constitution may have such function, specific, constructive and adequate. That this function has become impaired is not the fault of the constitution, but is the result of perversions of power intrusted into the hands of the senate and to a definite lowering of the standard of representative ability in that body.

Speaker Longworth goes further in explaining the real entitlement of the house to precedence of importance in the estimation of the public. The house has sole power to originate bills raising revenue, to originate all general appropriation bills. Hence it is the center, vital nerve and artery of the present form of government: and as the speaker truly says, it has been in late years the dominating factor in the legislative branch of the government and "is more stable, functions better and controls the balance wheel of our government," as the framers of the constitution contemplated should be the proper function of the senate.

Speaker Longworth was not making effort to appear facetious or amusing. He was presenting fundamental facts in his investigment against a popular delusion.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

AGAIN THE DEAD HAND.

Though prejudice is often carried to the brink of the grave it is not always buried with the man who sustained it with jealous nursing. He would have it live, to govern the lives of others. The dead hand again undertakes to rule. This time in Ohio.

After his widow's death the man's property is to go to an ultra-strict Christian organization, provided the girls of the institution do not bob their hair and wear sleeveless gowns of a length shorter than eight inches from the floor. If these stipulations are violated the estate must go to a foreign missionary society.

Fancy the latter society's use of the money in a desolate foreign region, where the native girls are overdressed if they wear more than a string of beads, and there is apparent the absurdity of trying to govern styles beyond the dictates of the current fashion plate.

It is scarcely necessary to say that post mortem inhibitions are never generally popular.—Toledo Blade.

POWER BEHIND THE TARIFF.

Tariff does not recognize the postoffice address of members of congress, but it does appeal to the interests behind them. The Boston Herald notes that Senator Wheeler, of Montana, questioned Senator Grundy's right to vote on rates on the products of Pennsylvania, and it quotes Senator Walsh, of Montana, who admitted he was interested in sheep, ready to vote to put a high duty on wool rags, and was frank enough to say that he would vote to prohibit their importation. That would, of course, be for the benefit of the sheep producers. Walsh was, of course, right in voting to protect the interests of a great industry in his own state. Why not the same right for Grundy? Regardless of party views, every citizen of St. Cloud would like to see an adequate duty put on granite.—St. Cloud Times.

The Service of Science.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

From time to time, the scientist with unusual imaginative powers attempts to visualize the world as it will be at some far point in the future. Writers of fiction have frequently tried their hands at this fascinating but fruitless game. In astronomy, Flammarion; in biology, Haldane; in poetic science, Verne; in fiction, Wells and Kipling; in drama, Shaw—these and many others have drawn fanciful pictures, ranging from the spectacular and startling to the trash and the horrible.

A machine, an invention, a new scientific discovery—any one of these is really an extension of man's powers. It will enable him to do things he has never done before. It may enable him to conquer space, to travel at will in a new domain—as in the case of the submarine, the airplane or the dirigible. It may enable man to cure disease, to nullify the ravages of some scourge to which man has long been subject. As man extends the boundaries of human knowledge, he develops new powers and consequently assumes new responsibilities. The future character of the race is bound up with the progress of science and invention.

A great proportion of scientific discoveries and inventions minister to the comfort and happiness of mankind. The patent office is years behind in its work in examining new applications for patents. Very many of these inventions, probably the greater number, arose from the ingenuity of man being applied to the problem of facilitating the task of living. Every one is tempted to buy, if it be not too expensive, some clever contrivance or bright gadget, which will save five minutes of time or prove more convenient than anything we now have for enabling us to do the day's work.

From time to time, alarmists arise to sound a note of warning concerning the extraordinary advances of science. Bertrand Russell voices the fear that science will be used to "promote the power of dominant groups." A confederation of nations may buy up the new secrets for the creation of new death-dealing instruments of destruction: guns, explosives, poison gases, bacteriological disease germs for poisoning enemies wholesale. An irresponsible scientist may sometimes hold in his hand the power of life and death over millions. The menace seems appalling, and not wholly unreal.

Scientists, it need scarcely be retorted, have always been the benefactors of mankind. Scientific discoveries are either scrapped, forgotten, or else placed at the service of the race. While it is true that science has actually multiplied the tools of destruction, Millikan has recently pointed out that every scientific advance "finds ten times as many new, peaceful and constructive uses as it finds destructive ones." As he so well says: "Steel does indeed make bayonets, but it also makes plowshares and railroads and automobiles and sewing machines and threshers and a thousand other things whose uses constitute the strongest existing diverter of human energies from the destructive to the peaceful arts."—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

Vaudeville Headliner To Be Starred on Columbia Network Friday Night

Mildred Hunt, One of First Crooners, Returning to Radio Circles

OLIN HOWLAND, dancer, comedian and vaudeville headliner, will be starred during the Brown-Bilt Footlites program to be broadcast over the Columbia network at 8 o'clock Friday night.

Mr. Howland's name was practically unknown in the theatrical world in New York City until "Leave It to Jane." He is the younger brother of the actress, Jobyna Howland, who urged him to become an actor. The Howlands were born in Denver and it was quite natural that Olin should lean toward the stage after the success his sister enjoyed.

He began in a small way in the chorus of a musical comedy which was tried out in six different cities, but never reached the Gay White Way. Next he secured a small part in David Belasco's "The Warrens of Virginia."

Various small roles followed, and then about that time the dancing craze was at its height and Olin Howland succeeded Vernon Castle in a New York production. For a time also he taught dancing and was so successful that he traveled all over Europe doing exhibition dancing.

Mr. Howland's second big success was as Chester Pollard in "She's a Good Girl," when he carried off the comedy honors of the show. For the intervening 10 years, Olin Howland has been featured on Broadway as an artist and as a comedian. He has appeared in innumerable movies and has a tremendous "movie following."

FOUR PLEAD GUILTY TO FRAUD CHARGES

Pleas in Connection with Stock Exchange Scandal Are Unexpected

LONDON, Jan. 24—The trial of Clarence E. Hatry, millionaire British financier, and three associates on charges of fraud and forgery in connection with a stock exchange scandal, took a sensational turn today when all pleaded guilty to all counts in the major indictment.

The pleas were entered as soon as the defendants' defense had started. It was utterly unexpected, as at their arraignment all four had entered not guilty pleas.

The judge immediately ordered the jury to return a formal verdict of guilty, and the court began consideration of the subsidiary indictment.

Stockholders in Hatry's manifold interest are said to have lost an aggregate of $9,500,000 when his securities slumped on the London stock exchange.

Attempt To Trace Source of Two Powder Bombs

CHICAGO, Jan. 24—Police today were striving to trace the source of two black powder bombs which exploded last night at the plants of two hand-bill distributing firms.

The first bomb shattered the front doorway of the Chicago Circular Advertising Service Co. Windows of nearby buildings and some office furniture was shattered.

Ten minutes later the second bomb blew in the front door of Stone's Loaded District Service company, located one mile away. Police blamed labor racketeers for the blasts.

One of 13.6 Babies in U. S. Die in First Year

CHICAGO—One out of every 13.6 babies born annually in the United States dies before reaching its first birthday, according to a survey of the American Research Foundation based on the latest statistics in the registration areas of this country.

"Of 1,856 babies born in America every year, an average of 136,118 die before the end of 12 months," says a bulletin covering the survey. "The big percentage of mortality among infants occurs during the first month of life. Deaths in the majority of cases are due to lack of proper care and to the fact that mothers make more mistakes in the first weeks of their babies' lives than in all the remainder of the first year."

London's lineliest job is, perhaps, that of the Keeper of the Golden Gallery in St. Paul's Cathedral, three hundred feet above the street level.

Two English penny stamps recently sold in London for $65 were government "forgeries." They were part of a batch printed for young royal collectors, including King Edward (then Prince of Wales).

...n instance, in addition to ...ining Andy Brown and also the roles of Stev... the Kingfish, several officers of ... Mystic Knights of the Sea and other characters for which a deep bass voice is required.

Amos, on the other hand, is the Kingfish, the Prince, the Fortune Teller and many other important characters.

In many episodes, the boys are kept busy popping in and out of different roles, often talking to themselves for a five-minute interval.

When a new character is created, Correll and Gosden must decide upon the character and the type of voice he should have. There are several types of voice until one is found. The characters are divided as evenly as possible to allow the boys a reasonable space.

The difference in voice characterization is achieved partly by changing position in front of the microphone. Correll, for instance, will lean ... Andy or speak in ... if he should take ... part of some other character. ... will then be perhaps 10 inches ... the microphone.

Amos also moves back and forth ... the Kingfish to Lawyer ... Amos. Anyone watching them ... aware of the necessity of ... a script will think they were ...

In Court Room Scene

In a famous courtroom scene ... Kingfish Andy was involved in a ... breach of promise suit brought against him by the Widow Parker. Ten persons were in the cast. Correll took the part of Andy, attorney for the defense, judge, policeman and county clerk. Gosden was Amos, prosecuting attorney, bailiff and Kingfish. It went over without a hitch with both actors hopping back and forth like jumping jacks.

But Amos 'n' Andy know their own limitations. Never has Madam Queen's voice, nor that of Ruby Taylor, been heard over the radio. The boys are good but they draw the line on a woman's voice.

Soon, too, they are in vaudeville, and that's something else again. The NBC network, over which the boys are heard, must make special wire arrangements nightly to bring to the radio world the voices of the stars.

Wires and microphones must be connected to the stage of a different city each week so that they may broadcast promptly on the minute.

And if you think the whole business is easy—try it!
